Supply Chain Fractured

A List Of 33 Things We Know About The Coming Food Shortages

BY TYLER DURDEN

SATURDAY, SEP 10, 2022 - 06:30 AM

Authored by Michael Snyder via The Economic Collapse blog.

Things are far worse than you are being told. Over the past few months, I have been carefully documenting facts that show that global food production is going to be way down in 2022. Unfortunately, most people out there don't seem to understand that the food that isn't being grown in 2022 won't be on our store shelves in 2023. We are potentially facing an absolutely unprecedented worldwide food crisis next year, but the vast majority of the population doesn't seem very alarmed about this. So I would encourage you to help me get this warning out by sharing this list with as many people as you possibly can. As you will see below, we now have so many data points that it is impossible to deny what is coming.

On a long enough timeline the survival rate for everyone drops to zero.

- #1 The hard red winter wheat crop in the United States this year “was the smallest since 1963”. But in 1963, there were only 182 million people living in this nation. Today, our population has grown to 329 million.
- #2 It is being projected that the rice harvest in California will be “half what it would be in a normal year”.
- #3 The U.S. tomato harvest will come in at just 10.5 million tons in 2022. That is over a million tons lower than a normal year.
- #4 This will be the worst U.S. corn harvest in at least a decade.
- #5 Year-to-date shipments of carrots in the United States are down 45 percent.
- #6 Year-to-date shipments of sweet corn in the United States are down 20 percent.
- #7 Year-to-date shipments of sweet potatoes in the United States are down 13 percent.
- #8 Year-to-date shipments of celery in the United States are down 11 percent.
- #9 Total peach production in the U.S. is down 15 percent from last year.
- #10 Almost three-fourths of all U.S. farmers say that this year’s drought is hurting their harvests.
